Phil Breedlove is a decorated retired general of the United States Air Force where he reached the highest levels of military leadership as one of six geographic Combatant Commanders and the Supreme Allied Commander of NATO. A proven strategic planner, motivational leader and talented communicator, he brings a wealth of experience as a Stellar Advisor.

During his 39 years of service, he served in a variety of demanding command and staff positions, leading large-scale, diverse, global operations across two theaters of combat. Phil earned a reputation as an inspirational leader and was able to build consensus and form teams to accomplish complex tasks spanning multiple continents.

As the Supreme Allied Commander Europe (SACEUR) and the Commander of U.S. European Command, he answered directly to NATO's governing body, the North Atlantic Council and to the President of the United States and Secretary of Defense. He led the most comprehensive and strategic structural and policy security changes in the alliance's 70-year history. His diplomatic skills reassured allies, deterred potential aggressors, and maintained alliance unity during the most dynamic and challenging period since its inception. He led the forces of 28 nations and multiple partners while ensuring the security of an alliance that accounts for more than half the world's GDP.

Phil is currently serving on the Georgia Tech Advisory Board, as a Distinguished Professor in the Sam Nunn School of International Affairs at Georgia Tech, as a Senior Advisor to Fairfax National Security Solutions, and on the Board of Directors of the Atlantic Council.
